There is not the propshameless and miserly spirit.

Men of means, unfit for service from whatever cause, have now excellent opportunities to do for their country what they are under the highest moral obligation to do. Let them get substitutes to go into the service for three years. Let Congress, new that it is at work amending the Enrollment sot, exempt for age or physical disability only in the cases of those unable to pay the commutation or procure a substitute.

The School Girls of England and America If we may judge from the London Spectator, there is great remissness in the work of education in England, as well as in some parts of America. After noticing the failures at some sohool examination at first chapter of "The Deliver Romance," if ever, now fight such regiments as we Cambridge, it adds: "The girls made no the last record of the lamented writer— the last record of the lamented writer— was the prime element of the South—the proud, full blooded, defiant element. easier to turn the flank of a difficulty than it is to fight it. It is easy to learn a smattering of rules, but to go tothe "roots of things" is a very different labor. Very few girls er boys are disposed to dig down to the foundation principles on which all rules rest. If they can a tain to parrot-like porfection of recitation, and pass the insuffer able examinations, that is sufficient. To go through the course of study, like a meteor followed by darkness, is often the height of their ambition Education is then completed, and, if the victim of the foolish training be a girl, she is now ready to be married. Such often are the school girls of America. With young men, the consequences of imported training are fielt long afterwards. Indeed they never fully recover from them.

wrore, it is the interest of the Demo Federal army, discredit Federal finance, in nhort, to extinguish the war altogether, in or der to extinguish the party which invented the war, and governs it and lives by it."

Now that the Peace Copperheads have few more weeks in which to carry out the above programme, before the nomination at Chicago, the people may expectall their hellish enginery to be brought to bear. The Federal army must be weakened and the Federal finances discredited in order to their success.

In order to accomplish such an end Jeff. Davis could afford, if he had it to send a number of millions of specie North to aid in the work.

So far as we are concerned, while re specting the out-and-out peace men more than the class who profess to be for a wat and yet oppose all the means necessary to carry it on, the nomination of a war man at Chicago, though involving a harder campaign, would be more acceptable. If both parties are for war, the rebellion will have less consolation than ever before Preferring the interests of the Republic to those of party, no one could fail to regret . the nomination of a man at Chicago, who would comfort the rebels by his political opinions.

In New York, under the lend of Permando Wood, the Peace Copperheads at organizing. One of the first steps is to be the holding of a great mass meeting in New York City, and, if possible, thereby give direction to the Democratic party. This, however, we regard as impossible. No party in power could make peace. It would be immediately hursed from its position, if it should attempt the dissolvation of their possible effects upon the war; otherwise we have no position of the country.
